

President and CEO Louis Silverman and Dissident Director Ahmed Hussein to Discuss Control Contest at Quality Systems, Inc. on Glass Lewis Proxy Talk

San Francisco (Sep. 16, 2005) - Glass, Lewis & Co., a leading independent research and proxy advisory firm, will host two consecutive Proxy Talk conference calls on Monday, September 19 at 2:30 p.m. (ET) and 4:00 p.m., with dissident director Ahmed Hussein and Quality Systems' president and CEO Louis Silverman, respectively. Mr. Hussein, a current QSII director and the Company's second largest shareholder, is seeking to convince QSII shareholders that all current board members, other than himself, were handpicked by Sheldon Razin, the Company's founder and chairman. This was done in an effort to reassert Razin's influence on the board after being asked to resign as president and CEO in 2000. Mr. Hussein asserts each current director is controlled by Mr. Razin and therefore cannot be considered independent. As a result, Mr. Hussein has proposed his own slate of directors, himself included, and is urging shareholders to vote against the proposed stock plan.

Conversely, Mr. Silverman intends to persuade shareholders that Mr. Hussein's position lacks merit and the proposed directors are not beholden to Mr. Razin.

These conference calls are for Glass Lewis clients and other invited institutional investors. Institutional investors can learn more about Proxy Talk at <http://www.glasslewis.com/learnmore/>
