

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

GLASS LEWIS LAUNCHES REPORT AVAILABILITY THROUGH CAPITAL IQ

Institutional Investors can now access Glass Lewis' proprietary research reports through Capital IQ's financial information database

SAN FRANCISCO (March 31, 2008) — Glass Lewis & Co., LLC, a leading independent research and proxy advisory firm, today announced that its proprietary research is now available through Capital IQ, a web and Excel-based research platform that combines deep information on companies, markets, and people worldwide. The service enables institutional investors to access Glass Lewis' Yellow Card, Monitor Alerts, Trend Reports and Proxy Paper research directly via Capital IQ.

Investment professionals who have long relied on Capital IQ for its suite of financial data and analytics now have access to research from Glass Lewis on matters not well covered by traditional investment research: accounting policies, financial statement transparency, corporate governance, litigation and regulatory developments, related-party transactions, executive compensation and board of director independence and quality, among others.

Glass Lewis research services include Yellow Card Reports, analysis and insight into unrecognized business, legal, governance or financial statement risk at select public companies; The Monitor, an alert service that enables investors to continuously monitor public companies for signs of unusual risk; Trend Reports, which examine accounting issues and regulatory developments that disproportionately affect certain companies or industries; and Proxy Paper, contextual, objective analysis and voting recommendations on all proposals contained in thousands of global proxies.
